Facebook Sooner Model A Club

Volume 58, Issue 6
2025

Dear Sooner Model A Club members,

As I'm writing this message, it is raining again. I know we are all happy to see the lakes and streams full, but some of us have the kind of Model A where it rains inside the car as well as on the outside, and the Oklahoma weather usually includes storms with the rain. Because of the rain and stormy weather, we barely had enough board members for a quorum at the board meeting.

Due to the expectation of storms this weekend, the picnic and car club gathering, arranged by Don Sable, one of our members, has been postponed to July 12th. OKC Coffee & Cars and the Tulsa Club have also cancelled their Saturday activities because of the weather forecast.

Chuck and Don have been very busy with the planning of the Fall Tour on October 16-19. Everything is all arranged, and unless something changes in Norman, we are all set. The hotel information and the schedule are in this issue of the Scuttlebutt. The driving instructions will be released soon. Don and Chuck will continue to monitor the route, as you never know when there will be more road construction.

The Club Meeting for June will be at the neighborhood clubhouse of Terry & Judy Joy. We are having a neighborhood parade with the Model A's at 1:30pm. The meeting and refreshments will be after the parade.

On June 22nd, we are meeting for lunch at Incredible Pizza on NW Expressway. The Club has been there several times, and we always have a good time eating and visiting.

In July, we are participating in the Independence Day Parades in Bethany and Edmond. Except for August, there is a parade in our schedule each month for the rest of the year. We are hoping to see you soon. Eventually, the rain will stop.

Phil Wolfenbarger, President

Refreshments for the June meeting will be provided by Helene, Karen, and Drinks by Pat & Nolen.

Model A Ford Tires & Rims

1928 - 1929

1930 - 1931

Numeric tire sizing is most common on bias ply tires which were manufactured from the late 1920's through the late 1960's. This started with the tires that were marketed as Balloon tires, due to their lower air pressure and soft ride.

a great number of things become impossible.
I refuse to recognize that there are impossibilities.

INSTRUMENT PANEL AND SPEEDOMETERS

"Do you know how fast you are were going?" said the officer.

"No, not really because I don't have a speedometer" I replied.

The Model T after 1915 did not have a speedometer, just two items in the instrument panel...an ignition/light switch and an ammeter.

The Model A instrument panel used from 1928 through June 1930 had five items on display: gas gauge, ignition, dash light, ammeter and speedometer. There were four versions of this panel. The first version used an oval speedometer, had machined countersunk mounting holes at the bottom and a flange that completely encircled the panel (BOP - 01/28). The second version had a one inch section of the flange removed (02/28 - 09/28). The third version had stamped countersunk mounting holes (07/28 - 06/30) while the fourth version was used solely for Northeastern speedometers and did not have a notch for the trip odometer (12/29 - 06/30).

From 06/30, the instrument panel was elongated horizontally with a ribbed pattern on the face and a round speedometer. The panel was steel and finished in bright nickel (06/30 - 08/30) while Butler nickel was specified for 50% of production (09/30 - EOP). A brass panel was optional (01/31 - 02/31) while the the final panel had a distinct line around the ribbed area was not flared at the perimeter (05/31 - EOP). The recessed areas above the gas gauge and below the speedometer were painted satin black. All screws were nickel plated.

Speedometers were manufactured by three companies: Stewart-Warner (S-W), Waltham (W) and Northeast (N). Stewart-Warner and Waltham had a trip odometer while Northeast did not have one. Stewart-Warner produced two speedometers (BOP-03/28 and 01/28-06/30) while Waltham produced one model (06/28-06/30) with a fleur-de-lis marker. The Northeast speedometer had a red pointer and a red 1/10 mileage marker (12/29-06/30). Round shaped speedometers (06-30-12/31) were introduced with the new instrument panel in June 1930. All numerals were black except the 1/10 odometer dial which was red. The pointer was red until March 1931. All speedometers had a satin black face plate with a bright nickel bezel. Northeast speedometer was discontinued in late 1930.

Speedometers were required to be accurate and consequently were certified as such and were provided with a identification number and means of indicating that they have not been changed afterwards. The Stewart-Warner has a number and visible means of sealing while the number on the attachment ear (Northeast) serves the same purpose.

Women and the Model A Era

Elizabeth "Betty" Robinson (August 23, 1911 – May 18, 1999), later Elizabeth R. Schwartz was an American athlete and winner of the first Olympic 100 m for women in Amsterdam in 1928. #879 in the photo.

For women, the 20's and 30's brought more educational and career opportunities. At the turn of the century, only 19% of college degrees were awarded to women. By 1928, that number rose to 39%, and the number of educated women continued to grow despite the economic hardships that came with the Great Depression. Although the Depression was difficult for women workers, 800,000 women belonged to unions by 1938, and that number would grow as war production increased.

Unwilling to adopt their mother's constrictive style, the young women of the 1920's adopted a new one. They replaced corsets and conservative layers with loose-fitting dresses that matched their carefree spirit, bobbed their hair and wore makeup. In the 1930's, women adopted a more feminine style with plunging necklines, accentuated waists, knee length skirts and pumps. Advancements in clothing manufacturing increased the selections available to all classes, and from there, women were able to define themselves with style.
